

Naming of Things

There is a sweet redemptive joy in the simple naming of things:

crisp apple
light on water sleeping child
new mown grass ploughed field raked with frost fish-bone clouds high in a china-blue sky fragrant down on a baby's head metallic taste of rain

As if by naming they are made anew to cradle in my hand.